The Journal of Southeast Asian Education is an official Southeast Asian Ministers of Education Organization (SEAMEO) publication produced twice a year.

The main purpose of this international journal is to provide information and analyses to assist in policy-making and planning in the countries in the region. It promotes the interchange of ideas on educational issues and comparative studies, both within the countries of the region and other parts of the world. Each article in the journal was written to enable readers from outside each country to obtain an overview of how education is carried out outside its borders.

The theme of this special issue is “Values Education and Global Citizenship towards Achieving the Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) and Promoting Humanities.” It is a product of SEAMEO's collaboration with the University of Tsukuba. It features official contributions from four SEAMEO regional centres, namely, the Southeast Asian Regional Open Learning Centre (SEAMOLEC), the Regional Centre for Quality Improvement of Teachers and Education Personnel (QITEP) in Mathematics (SEAQIM), the Regional Centre for QITEP in Science (SEAQIS), the Regional Centre for Education in Science and Mathematics (RECSAM), the Regional Centre for Lifelong Learning (CELLL), and the Regional Centre for History and Tradition (CHAT). Other contributors also came from organisations such as the Centre for Research on International Cooperation in Educational Development (CRICED) and the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO) Mahatma Gandhi Institute of Education for Peace and Sustainable Development (MGIEP). The various articles in this journal present projects and programmes focusing on values education and global citizenship in Southeast Asia.

The inaugural issue of the Journal of Southeast Asian Education was launched by the SEAMEO Secretariat in July 2000.
