

Acknowledgements

I owe endless gratitude to many persons who gladly supported me in accomplishing this dissertation.

Special appreciation goes to Professor Nobuo Takahashi for his kind advice and help in writing this dissertation. I also thank Professor Isao Saito, Akira Tabayashi, Akira Tezuka and Yuji Murayama for their useful comments and encouragement.

I am grateful to Dr. Steven Phillips at the Electrotechnical Laboratory for his useful comments during the preparation of the English manuscript. In addition, I wish to express my gratitude to Dr. Christopher R. Bryant at the Université de Montreal and Dr. Thomas Waldichuck at the University-College of the Cariboo, Canada, who commented constructively on various parts of this dissertation on earlier drafts. I also thank the graduate students of Geosciences in the University of Tsukuba for their many invaluable comments. Moreover I also express my appreciation to Professor Masataka Hatano and Professor Yuichi Hashimoto at Hokkaido University, Professor Takashi Okuno at Jobu University, and Professor Toshio Kikuchi at Tokyo Metropolitan University, who helped and supported this dissertation.

In addition, appreciation is given to Mr. Tadashi Fukuda and other officers in Maebashi City Hall, who helped me in one way or another by providing the support, materials and information; and the many shopkeepers and farmers, who kindly explained their long-term decision-making processes on their own properties.

Finally, I thank my parents, who supported this dissertation; and my wife, Noriko, for all her patience at a time of excessive demands from our daughter, Momoka.

Jun TSUTSUMI
Research Associate
Department of Regional Sciences
Faculty of Letters
Hokkaido University
June, 1999